Similar palate to the Tradition, the Réserve Brut has more depth, focus and maturity. There is a bright acidity the livens the flavours with cassis and apple that lead to a lightly chalky finish. There is both strength and elegance in this wine with a touch of femininity. Compared to the Brut Tradition, the Brut Réserve is aged for 3 years on lees before being disgorged by hand. A more expressive and intense reflection of the identity of the terroir is revealed. An excellent pairing with a light pasta with morels.

Nestled in the heart of Äy, Champagne Gatinois covers 7 hectares of vineyards in this Grand Cru region. With 12 generations of knowledge, since 1696 to be exact, Louis Cheval is currently at the helm of this historic estate. Champagne Gatinois focusses on simplicity and complexity to reveal the unique terroir in their champagnes. The domaine utilizes manual labour to guarantee the exceptional quality of the grapes are not compromised, thus the plots are treated more as gardens and not as industrial plots. By committing to protecting the environment and terroir through their vinification, Champagne Gatinois also preserves its unique style and stunning quality of their wines.
